Made in Tibet

Essence and simplicity

Enjoy the unique Tamashii® experience

Tamashii® jewels are not simply objects; they represent and offer an experience deriving from the Tibetan culture and its principles of Universalism, Significance and Simplicity. Our own story, strongly linked to our travels and exploration, has been influenced by these essential principles. Our most significant experiences in fact underlie the origin of Tamashii® products, which should not be seen simply as fashion items but as jewels that reflect a particular lifestyle and a philosophical approach to life.

Tamashii®

Tibet

Tibetan jewellery has a strong symbolic value and passes on ancient cultural and religious traditions. In the Buddhist tradition, gems and precious stones serve as metaphors for ideals of faith and convey enigmatic spiritual conditions and our hidden personal characteristics. Made with natural stones, TAMASHII® jewellery is used by Tibetan monks as a talisman and as part of their religious practices. In fact, TAMASHII® means 'soul' - the word comes from 'tama' that means 'jewel', making 'jewel of the soul'. People who wear these bracelets pursue an ideal of peace and love for themselves and for the world. These bracelets help to protect the soul, enable it to grow and to find a purpose - and a meaning to life.

TAMASHII® is made in Tibet and the bracelets are blessed by Buddhist monks.

... a story that began in far off lands

We discovered Tamashii® bracelets during a trip to Tibet in 2006. And we brought them back to Italy because they are so charming. This charm is the combination of their beauty, their meaning and the many qualities they possess. We also hoped to spread the message of peace and fellowship from the Tibetan people.

Today's Tamashii® bracelet retains the original's shape, production and calabash. Simple beads made from stone, wood or metal are always linked to the number nine and have been replaced by natural, hard, semi-precious, and precious stones.

Unique jewellery overflowing with meaning

Every Tamashii® bracelet, ring or pendant, carries its own story because they are still made with the same traditional ancient methods. Their meaning is not just linked to the stone that embellishes it. More importantly, it's about the people who make them and endow them with inestimable value.

The Calabash

Each Tamashii® bracelet is characterised by a wooden element, that represents a pumpkin full of seeds, called the Kamawatchi Calabash or simply Calabash. It represents the continuity of life in a distinctive way.

Inhabitants of Zang (Xizang, Tibet) believe this amulet signifies happiness because it reminds us of the certainty of life's continuity.

A wide-angle landscape photograph showing rolling, arid hills in shades of brown and tan. In the foreground, a bright blue lake or reservoir is visible, reflecting the sky. The background features more distant, rugged mountains, some with patches of snow, under a sky filled with large, dark, dramatic clouds. The overall mood is serene yet powerful.

CHLORITE

Referring to its colour, the name of this gemstone derives from the Greek word 'chloros', which means 'pale green'. Also known as Seraphinite, this jewel stimulates a desire to engage in meditation and prayer. It promotes serenity by helping an individual to become more clearly aware of their conflicts. The colour of this gem, generally symbolizing a sense of balance and harmony, may also be associated with the green aspect of Arya Tara, a very important deity within the sphere of Buddhism and the goddess of universal compassion.

LEOPARD SKIN

It is known as Leopard Skin Jasper because the colour and aspect of the stone is reminiscent of the hide of a leopard.

This gemstone symbolizes change, truth and progress.

It is considered the 'stone of resolution' as it enables us to overcome unresolved emotional stress and return to a state of serenity.

The Tamashii® Leopard Skin jewel will encourage reflection and stimulate one's imagination; it also enhances communication and cohesion within a group.

LARIMAR

The fascinating, very precious Larimar stone is a true rarity that can only be found in the Dominican Republic. Its colours reflect the hues of the sea, with various blue, azure and green shades and the colour white, reminiscent of the foam created by high waves. This gem may stimulate in the observer's mind a re-elaboration of impressions and help us take things in hand, allowing us to feel more in control of our life and to overcome any tendencies towards victimisation. The gemstone helps us recover from excessive emotional instability by engendering a sense of inner calm and control.

SILVER OBSIDIAN

Obsidian is one of the most ancient 'cult stones'. It owes its name to a certain Obsius, a Roman explorer who first discovered it in Ethiopia. Among the diverse types, the Silver Obsidian variety presents a dark brown/black colour and a shimmering effect generated by its silvery reflections. Traditionally linked to human consciousness, it is believed that the stone may awaken us, bringing to light repressed emotions or the content of our mind, and allowing people to overcome a state of crisis. Its presence may enhance our perception and even refine the sensorial dimension of our psyche.

SUGAR HEART AGATE

Sugar Heart Agate is found in the Gobi Desert of Mongolia.

Its principal characteristic is the translucent effect generated by the 'heart' of each coloured stone.

This is an appealing aspect that attracts attention on account of its different colour. The Tamashii® Sugar Heart Agate symbolically reminds us of the importance of never dwelling upon the external appearance of people or things and, rather, it suggests we should delve deeply into every context we encounter as we may be quite surprised by what we find. For example, within a red or yellow stone we may find a black heart, crystals or even a cavity.

GREEN LIME OPAL

Lime green opal, a green gemstone with a yellowish shade, is mainly found in Mexico.

Stones which present this particular colour variant are in fact quite rare.

Tamashii® Green Lime Opal reinforces our capacity to orient ourselves within the world, promoting the use of our intuition to determine an appropriate choice, and remaining free from any sense of fear or guilt and allowing us to sleep very peacefully.

BLUE CALCITE

Calcite, which presents a variety of colours, is a mineral that has been used for thousands of years in all civilisations around the globe. The blue version symbolically represents human expression and communication. Blue Calcite has a calming and relaxing effect within the emotional sphere. It promotes an optimistic point of view, stimulates creative energy and dissipates aggressive drives and emotions. The stone will transfer a sense of stability, self-confidence and firmness.

RED NETWORK STONE

The Red Network stone, which is extracted in Mongolia, is an agglomerate specimen mainly formed by the inclusion of red network jasper and other types of mineral stone, such as Agate or Hematite. Patterns are formed by the veins within this gem, and each pattern differs from those occurring in other stones, thereby creating a unique 'network' effect. Red Network stone is considered as a supreme 'nourishing' element that provides support during moments of stress and pacifies the mind. The stone is renowned for its properties relating to the induction of relaxation and compassion.

DIOPSIDE

The Diopside gemstone derives its name from the Greek words 'di' ('two' or 'double') and 'opsis' ('appearance' or 'sight'). The main extraction areas are located in Brazil and in Burma, as in the case of our bracelets. The stone is also known as 'the crying gem' for its alleged capacity to alleviate traumatic experiences through the purification of tears. It helps us open up our mind by stimulating a sense of forgiveness and flexibility. It may also assist those who come into contact with the stone in their efforts to overcome the pain of old wounds, encouraging contact with others and reconciliation.

GZI FLOW

The Tibetan word 'Gzi' (Dzi) may be translated as lustre, luminosity, clarity or splendour. The Gzi gemstones are generally agate stones, crafted according to ancient techniques and embellished by symbols, images and patterns across their surface. They convey a sense of ancient and very powerful concepts. The Tamashii® Gzi Flow bracelet stimulates visions of water present in a mountain stream, sometimes flowing gently and occasionally in a turbulent manner. Likewise, there may be moments in our life when we feel we are proceeding serenely and others when we are assailed by tumultuous emotions.

TAMASHII® DIAMOND CUT

The Tamashii® Diamond Cut collection is distinguished by the classical techniques used to produce each set of bracelets, following in the wake of tradition, and a particular feature worthy of note is the new stone-cutting method adopted, which is referred to as a “diamond cut”.

The distinctive aspect of the jewels in fact derives from the gem-faceting process, which results in an original design, also enhancing the luminosity of each stone.

Tamashii® MANTRA

The Mantra collection represents a special range of Tamashii® bracelets.

Stones are interspaced with genuine oriental wooden grains, hua qi-nanmu, which have been engraved and hand painted with mantra symbols. A mantra is a word in Sanskrit, the language of the ancient Vedic culture. The engraved symbols are two Sanskrit syllables: 'man', that means thought, breathe, living soul, and 'tra', meaning what is free and what does, acts or protects. From this explanation, the word Man-tra can be defined as 'the way to free, modify the mind'.

THE PRAYER WHEEL

The 'Prayer Wheel' is a typically Tibetan religious object.
The wheel has the mantra, 'Om Mani Padme Hum', engraved in Sanskrit on its outer edge.

According to traditional Tibetan Buddhist teaching, the movement – even unintentional - of the wheel has the same beneficial effect as saying a prayer.

This collection inherits the specific design and strong meaning of the Tamashii® 'Prayer Wheel' collection, all made in 925 Sterling Silver.

Mod. ENGRAVED SILVER SPHERE

The original Tamashii® bracelets of the 'Prayer Wheel' line with engraved ball wheel in 925 Sterling Silver are made using natural stones.

They are enriched by a 925 Sterling Silver sphere wheel engraved with the mantra 'Om Mani Padme Hūm' of the Buddha of Compassion Cenresig.

Shönu

FOR THE NEXT GENERATION

Shönu is a special collection of Tamashii® bracelets dedicated to the younger generations.

The Tibetan word Shönu is used to refer to a young person and 'those who will be forever young'.

With this new series of jewels we wish to celebrate youthful energy and boldness, trusting that these gifts will never abate.

The predominant feature of the bracelets is the GZI gemstone present in each jewel. The GZI onyx stones are worked adopting ancient manual methods to create symbolic designs and figures. Inspired by ancient Buddhist traditions, the signs presented in the jewels express simple, ancient and yet extremely powerful concepts.

According to the ancient tradition each symbol must present a force supporting the classic Tantras, adhering to and reinforcing the principles of Buddhist philosophy.

 Each bracelet is composed of 6 mm stones and the minimum length is 14 cm, however these jewels are suitable for any physical size (also large wrists) thanks to the slots present in the cord.*

SERENITY

In the East, serenity acquires value through a spiritual perspective, but without excluding those of a material nature. This symbol draws our attention towards the possibility of achieving greater balance between the spirit and the body, but above all conveys the sense of a condition free from tension, without worries and fears.

PROTECTION

For Buddhists the power to protect others is a fundamental existential ideal of all living beings and, indeed, this concept underlies the very nature of the martial arts, which are always associated with the principle of defence rather than attacking others. The ability to protect others is one of the key precepts (commandments) of Buddhist teaching, and whoever is called upon to protect others undertakes one of the most important tasks in the world, corresponding to one of the highest aspirations of spirituality.

JOY

While joy is seen as a personal emotional state for those who dwell in the Western quarter of the world, for those in the East such a condition may be achieved only by sharing one's insight and values. This symbol reflects the pleasure deriving from a social life enriched by facilitating friendship and sharing.

COURAGE

Every being is called upon to engage in a great task, and everyone is capable of achieving a goal that is set; the only hindrance affecting this mission is fear. In this regard fear is construed as a lack of courage, and reflects the failure to comprehend one's own destiny and follow it. The symbol presented on this stone will help those who observe it to recognise their destiny and follow their true path, overcoming inner fears.

RIG ZVA Pendant

This pendant's shape is inspired by the RIG ZVA (Rig Adsin Spyi Zva) hat, worn by students of the rNin Ma Pa, meaning 'of ancients', school. Anyone who wears this symbol is interested in the instruction of the mystical experience that develops a deeper spirituality.

The stone is 10mm in diameter and the pendant is provided with a cotton cord (65cm/25in) with an original Tamashii® fastener.

EARRINGS

Original Tamashii® earring collection combines with natural stone bracelets and necklaces featuring butterfly-styled Stainless-Steel clasp and brown cord. These elements are the fundamental principles underpinning traditional Tamashii® design. Their shape echoes the traditional Calabash - made from wood characterising all our bracelets and necklaces and representing a seed-filled pumpkin to reflect life's continuity.

Essence and simplicity

The Tamashii® Ear-Drops collection pays homage to Tārā, the Great Mother Goddess and Protectress of Tibet, and the design of these earrings is indeed inspired by her birth.

On one particular occasion, Avalokiteśvara, the Buddha of great compassion, was unable to save sentient beings as he would have desired and, overcome by terrible despair, he cried. Tārā was born from a teardrop shed by the Buddha and she embodies the very essence of compassion, aimed at eliminating the suffering of all sentient beings and leading them towards a state of enlightenment.

OM TARE TUTTARE TURE SVAHA

She personifies the principle of immediate intervention and symbolises the active and energetic aspect of compassion, which will help us overcome difficulties that arise. Her body, formed by an emerald green light, is radiant, clear and translucent. it is not solid and material, and would appear to oscillate between a dimension of reality and non-reality. The colour green symbolises air (or wind) and, thus, also movement. From the spiritual point of view, the colour therefore indicates enlightened activity and an active, effective form of compassion. Tara intervenes for the good of those who submit their prayers to her, without delay and acting like a swiftly-moving wind. This collection is composed of earrings made from Sterling (925) Silver, with hard, natural gemstones which we love to define as the “drops of compassion” and a drop-pendant necklace.

STUD EARRINGS

Lamaism in Tibet is divided into several schools. Among the most characteristic and ancient is that of the Rnying-Ma-Pa (Tibetan: 'The Old Order') Buddhist sect. The monks of this order wear various headdresses, each of which identifies their hierarchical and spiritual role within the school they belong to.

RIG ZVA

Rig Zva is the headdress worn by novices who have passed the examinations of the Sgrub-Grva course. In Tibet, this single earring is also worn by men.

The three symbols of victory over disharmony

མི་མཐུན་གཡུལ་རྒྱལ།

(mi-mthun g.yul-rgyal)

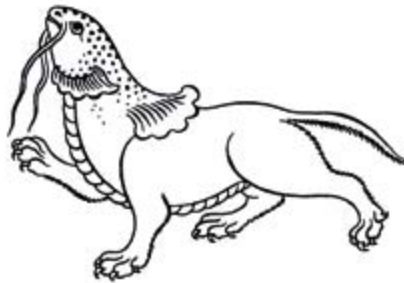

The symbols of victory over disagreement and quarrels are formed by three mythical creatures. Each symbol presents the union of two parts represented by 'traditional enemies' (i.e., a predator and its prey): the garuda⁽¹⁾ and snow lion; the fish and otter; the crocodile and sea snail. Created by the blending of two naturally hostile creatures, the images symbolize victory over discord.

The eight-legged lion

The fur-bearing fish

(nya spu rgyas-pa)

Union between a fish and an otter

The makara crocodile⁽²⁾

(chu-srin ma-ka-ra)

Union between a crocodile and a sea snail

⁽¹⁾ In Buddhist mythology the Garuda is a divine bird-like creature with a strong man's body. The image represents strength, freedom and balance

⁽²⁾ An aquatic creature occasionally identified with the crocodile and at other times a dragon with a proboscis (trunk). This image represents water, the source of life and fertility

TAMASHII® bracelets are much more than a simple type of ornamental jewellery. They convey a sense of the culture, faith and beauty of a people who embody the principles of Wisdom and Compassion.

THE ADVANTAGES OF WEARING A TAMASHII® JEWEL

In Tibetan Buddhism the concept of 'upaya' comprises all objects and expedient means that help to focus and guide the mind, drawing it back to an original condition of tranquillity and stillness. Since antiquity it has been known that focusing on a single object of thought allows the mind to settle and rest in the presence of that very object.

It is from the void that everything is generated, and each space between the gemstones makes us aware it is in stillness and silence that authentic beauty will manifest itself.

We hope and trust that every TAMASHII® jewel will induce anyone who wears it to experience a sense of peace, reminding us that being present and mindful in every moment of our life is the first step we take to draw closer to our true inner being.
